2022 NKOS Workshop

Welcome & Introduction

Starting at 9:00AM Pacific Daylight Time
Agenda

- What is NKOS
- The 2022 Workshop
- Zoom protocols for this workshop
What is NKOS

- Devoted to discussion of functional and data models for enabling knowledge organization systems/services (KOS)—such as classification systems, thesauri, and ontologies—as networked interactive services to support the description and retrieval of diverse information resources.[1]

- “Knowledge Organization Systems/Services (KOS) model the underlying semantic structure of a domain. Embodied as Web-based services, they can facilitate resource discovery and retrieval. They act as semantic road maps and make possible a common orientation by indexers and future users (whether human or machine).”[2]

NKOS website moved to DCMI
First U.S. NKOS workshop held at the ACM Digital Libraries Conference was in Philadelphia in 1997.

First European NKOS workshop held at the ECDL (European Conference on Digital Libraries) was in Lisbon in 2000.

First NKOS workshop held at the DCMI International Conferences on Dublin Core and Metadata Applications was in Seattle in 2003.
2022 Workshop Committee

Co-chairs

- Joseph Busch, Taxonomy Strategies
- Douglas Tudhope, University of South Wales
- Marcia Zeng, Kent State University

Program Committee

- Lu An, Wuhan University
- Mark Butler, Voise & UC Berkeley
- Claudio Gnoli, University of Pavia
- Koraljka Golub, Linnaeus University
- Margie Hllava, Access Innovations
- Vânia Mara Alves Lima, University of São Paolo
- Philipp Mayr, GESIS–Leibniz-Institute for the Social Sciences
- 박지영, Ziyong Park, Hansung University
- Jian Qin, Syracuse University
- Armando Stellato, University of Rome
- Jakob Voß, Verbundzentrale des GBV
2022 Workshop Program

- NKOS workshops explore the potential of Knowledge Organization Systems (KOS), such as vocabularies, classifications, ontologies, etc. The agenda includes a panel session, invited presentation, and eight reviewed submissions by researchers from seven countries.

Workshop structure

- Most sessions (#3, 4, 5, & 6) are presentations. All submissions were refereed by the Program Committee, who provided comments that were communicated to submitters.
- Each presentation has a 25-minute slot – 20 minutes for the presentation and 5 for questions.
- At the end of each session there is an additional Q&A period for discussion.
- The panel session (#1) and invited presentation (#2) have 45 minutes for presentations, plus 15 minutes for discussion.
- There is one 15-minute break each morning as indicated on the schedule.
- With the permission of submitters, their written submissions and slides will be made available on the NKOS website and NKOS Europe github (https://nkos-eu.github.io/) after the workshop.
- The webinar is being recorded. The link will be shared with workshop participants shortly after the workshop.
- We hope that presenters will decide to do further work on their NKOS Workshop submissions so that they can be published in a special issue of The Electronic Library. Shortly, we will be issuing a call for papers.
Workshop logistics

- There is one URL valid for both days of the Webinar.
- The Zoom Webinar controls differ from the version of Zoom you may already use.

Zoom Webinar Controls

- Click on the Raise Hand control to ask a question.
  - When it is your turn, the moderator will prompt you to Unmute. You need to accept the Unmute prompt before your mic can be unmuted.
  - Then you can ask your question. The moderator will Lower your Hand.
  - The moderator will Mute you (Disable Talking) after your question.
- The moderator will also scan Chat.
  - Send Chat messages to the Host to ask questions about Zoom or workshop logistics.
  - Send Chat messages to Everyone to ask substantive questions.
Feedback

- Please give us your feedback on this year’s NKOS workshop
