Abstract

The Linked Conservation Data project (<https://www.ligatus.org.uk/lcd/>) established a network of experts and organisations to promote good practice for documenting the conservation of cultural heritage. As part of the project guidelines on the use of terminology for conservation were established and a list of conservation vocabularies in use was produced. The project makes use of a GitHub repository to share encoded versions of some of these vocabularies, aiming at being the basis of a terminology portal for conservation. The repository also hosts alignment data between different vocabularies. This panelist will mainly share the issues and challenges found during this project as well as the rationale behind decisions made.
